"Two artists"

In Calcutta two artists, Shyamasree Basu from India and Cornelia Krug-Stührenberg from Germany, are holding an exhibition at gallery k2 from 15th to 28th February 2010. Shyamasree Basu is presenting abstract paintings and Cornelia K.St. is exhibiting her most recent watercolours and new techniques.

Shyamasree Basu is a very well known artist and has been experimenting with various forms and presentations in acrylic or oil colours. She has been experimenting with abstract forms for many years and has achieved expertise in this field. Her sentiments and exuberance find expression in her abstract paintings which are full of colours and forms and communication.

Cornelia Krug-Stührenberg who is at home in German art is primarily an expert in watercolour painting. She is exhibiting some of her very beautiful watercolours.

She has travelled extensively in Rajasthan and South India and her experiences there have led her to paint her impressions on paper as well as on sars, where she has expressed her abstract ideas within her figurative paintings.

Her sari depicting hands presented as "Satis hands" was influenced by handprints in Rajput palaces. There are also some semi-abstract paintings using different nature-pigments and colours on paper.

Her subjects are the poor and needy people of India, depicted carrying weights on their heads and shoulders, a symbol of the drapes we can see everywhere in in the world.

Shyamasree Basu and Cornelia Krug-Stührenberg are both excellent painters, and people will enjoy seeing their work.

The Statesman, February 2010
Debabrata Chakraborty